Hi Santa!

Since it's the age of technology and almost the end of Y2K, I thought you might prefer to get your wish lists by e-mail rather than the old-fashioned mailman. Besides, the mailman runs when he sees me!

My name is Sherman, and I'm a little foster puppy who needed knee surgery. I was turned in to Golden Retriever Rescue of Mid-Florida with my brothers and sisters when my mommy's owners didn't want her or us. My siblings all got great homes after a few weeks, but I had to wait because I had a bum knee.

I didn't know it at the time, but a bunch of people read about me on the Internet and helped collect lots of stuff called money to pay for my surgery. I especially liked the kids at Sarasota Middle School – they really loved me and collected a whole bunch of stuff. What was left over went to something called the "Woody Fund," which helps other goldens that come in to GRRMF and need surgeries or medical treatment.

Not that I'm bragging, but I became quite famous while I was in my foster home. I was in the paper, and I went to Sarasota Middle School one day and starred in their television show. Guess what, Santa – I even went to the Golden Retriever Club of America's National Specialty in St. Louis! I was in the rescue parade with lots of other special goldens like me. Funny thing – everyone made a lot of noise and their eyes watered! I don't think they were mad, though, 'cause they were smiling.

I know I'm one lucky puppy, but for Christmas, I would like to ask you for a few things, if that's o.k.

1. Please send some nice presents to all the people who sent money to pay for my surgery, especially all the children who gave up their allowances just for me.
2. I'd also like to give something to the veterinarians and their staffs who were all really nice and helped make me better. I don't have anything to send but wet kisses, but you can send them some of my presents if you want!
3. Please send LOTS of cuddly toys to my foster brothers Barnum, Bailey and Gandalf, who took

Hearts of Gold

by Betty Wyatt, GRRMF Adoption Coordinator

What an interesting year this has been, three litters of puppies and up to 10 calls a day from people asking us to take their dogs. We could see a tremendous change in this trend if breeders would only ensure their pet puppies are spayed/neutered when they are mature enough to have the surgery.

I have noticed some trends in "give-up" calls. Many are 1-2 years old and knocking down children because they have not been trained. Then there are the 7- or 8-year-olds given up because of a move or "no time," and the 10- to 12-year-olds turned in for a multitude of reasons. My heart goes out to all of them, but especially to the old dogs. Imagine being turned out after devoting your entire life to someone. It never fails to move me. Thankfully, most do amazingly well in their new homes once they adjust.

I want to review some other trends I see in the dogs being turned in. Most are either malnourished from neglect or too heavy. A few have weighed over 100 pounds, and one of them 125 pounds! Some get too many treats, table scraps or just too much cheap food. You can prevent many health challenges such as hip and heart problems if you simply watch your dog's diet. For treats, my dogs eat carrots.

Many dogs we take in have not seen a brush or comb for a long time and are full of mats. If only people would think about how their head feels when they don't brush their hair! I use several types of brushes, and I brush the dogs outside to keep the dander out of the carpet.

Teeth are another issue. They're usually loaded with plaque and discolored. Diseases often enter the body through infected gums. Our most recent rescue came in badly matted, with filthy teeth and a lump on his neck. Won't he feel good after a bath, nail trimming, some quality food and a trip to the vet! I watch their moods change when their health and appearances improve. It's so rewarding, I just can't figure out why people neglect these basic practices.

How often do you brush your canine friend's teeth? Trim his toenails? You know, they love it when you fuss over them. Try sitting on the floor during your evening TV watching or newspaper reading and give your dog a gentle brushing. Coupled with a nice gentle massage, this is a real treat for him. Some people tell me they even read their "Hearts of Gold" newsletter to their dogs!

One more observation: People have asked me why we seem to have a great adoption weekend and then maybe none for a couple of weeks. Let me explain. We have adoption guidelines, which have been approved by the GRRMF board. My job is to enforce these rules, which I am pleased to do. Adoption schedules depend on approved applications on hand, and we sometimes don't have what the adopter is looking for.

Among other things, we want our dogs to be family members living inside the house. But by far, our greatest concern is safety. So many people want to remove the leash on the beach or in an unfenced area. We see this as an unsafe practice and will deny adoptions based on how people answer that question. Leashed is loved!

All of us in rescue are grateful we have been able to save so many this year. We are approaching year-end, and I want to thank all who help – the hands-on people as well as our administrators and donors.

Blessings for a joyous holiday season. May you and your dogs be healthy in the New Year and may all your moments be golden.

—Betty

Remember Nugget, the cute little guy who was one of our front-page pups last issue? Nugget spent his life tied to a tree until he was rescued by a Federal Express delivery person. She is a cat rescuer, and had some 30 cats in her home. Nugget wanted to chase them all. The rescuer soon realized she couldn't keep him and gave him to us. Nugget was very thin and required extensive veterinary care, along with a lot of love from Betty, to bring his skin and coat back to health. What a good boy he is, now that he is in a cat-free home! His sad, brown eyes have been replaced by warm, happy ones – he has learned to smile. He was adopted by Douglas A. and Adelia S.

Nugget and his new family

Devon was also featured in our last newsletter. Devon was tied to a rope in the back yard, a dilapidated old dog house his only shelter from the hot Florida sun. Due to severe hair loss and neglect, Devon's rescuers were unsure if he was even a golden retriever. "I'll never forget that day ... this decrepit dog with hardly any hair and the saddest face you ever saw took one look at us and wagged his tail. There was no way we were going to leave without him," says John Pfohler, GRRMF volunteer. Devon met his new owner on a chance walk. Keith B. was out with his 8-year-old golden, Junior, and it was love at first sight. Devon has full run of his new home and sleeps in a soft, warm bed at night – usually Keith's! What a life! In a recent e-mail, Keith's mom says, "We all love him, he is such a sweet dog. He looks wonderful, his coat seems shinier and thicker and his eyes are bright!" Thanks to Keith and family for providing such a loving home to our special guy.

Sherlock came from an animal shelter and was heartworm positive. Following treatment, he was adopted by Scott N., who works at an assisted living facility for mentally challenged individuals. Sherlock now goes to work with Scott every day to do his own good work of helping others.

Jill came from an animal shelter. This little cutie was adopted by Sarah S. following heartworm treatment.

Winston, a large, handsome fellow, was given up when he became heartworm positive and his owners didn't have funds for treatment. A well-behaved gentleman, Winston was adopted by Jeff and Susan M. They adore him.

Winston and his new family

Geoffrey, a beautiful and well-behaved dog, came from an animal shelter. He was fostered by the Bradburns and adopted by Ed and Pat H. following the untimely death of their beloved Tracey. Evan, their little guy, went under the bed and would not come out after her death. Geoffrey, now Clancy, was the perfect match to put a smile back on all their faces.

Zoe was fostered by Robin Edwards and her family. She was rescued from Casselberry Animal Control along with Percy, who is still up for adoption. Zoe quickly became a part of her new home with Carol and Terry G.

Mitch was found wandering in the street. When the man returned him to the owner, he discovered the dog had lived his life tied to a stake and was unloved. With a little prompting, the owner gave Mitch to the Good Samaritan, who then called us. Now, Mitch enjoys the good life – he is loved and lives inside with all the comforts of his new home with Jan T.

Brandon and his family

Brandon was in a family with four children until the parents decided they could no longer afford him. Now he is with Nancy and Don A., who fostered him for one day before deciding they would adopt him. This sweet boy visits nursing homes with his family to do pet therapy work.

Peter had been wandering the streets and was attacked by a large dog when Peter entered the dog's backyard. He was turned in to animal control, and we were called. Adopted by Michael P., Peter is beautiful, well-behaved and seems to have had some previous training.

Nancy came to us as a small puppy who had been found wandering the street. She was matted and dirty. We fixed her up, and she was soon adopted by Toby and Tracy S., who tell us she is "awesome." They wanted a dog to keep their Australian Shepherd busy, and Nancy fit the bill.

Jack lived in a crate 18 hours a day until his owner decided to give him away. She dropped him off at the door of Rob and Lori Williamson and took off. Jack, now Oliver, is very much loved by Monica C. They take long walks together.

Darby, a small, pretty female, was wanted by everybody. She was fostered by the Sturns family, who quickly fell in love with her. Ken and Sandi H. were chosen to be her forever parents, and they say they definitely love her most of all.

Genna, 3 years, was given up because her family had no time for her. She is very happy in her new home with Mike and Lori S.

Captain was another animal control resident. Fostered by Kathy and Greg Spilker, this sweet, laid-back fellow was adopted by Emory and Susan K. He is a perfect companion to their geriatric dog, who was lonely after his doggie friend died.

Sofia, a cute 6-month-old, was tied to a stake and neglected. She was with us only two days before she went to her new home with Joyce J. and her rescued golden, Fonzie. The two now are perfect playmates.

Blake, 9 years old, has a distinguished pedigree. He was a descendent of Liberty, President Ford's golden retriever during his White House years. Blake was fostered and very much loved by Ellen S., who made sure his new owners would comply with Blake's one fetish – his leash is his "love," and he likes to sleep with it beside him every night. Bill and Anita R. adopted Blake and promised to let him keep his leash by his side for as long as he lives. He is a perfect fit for their canine household.

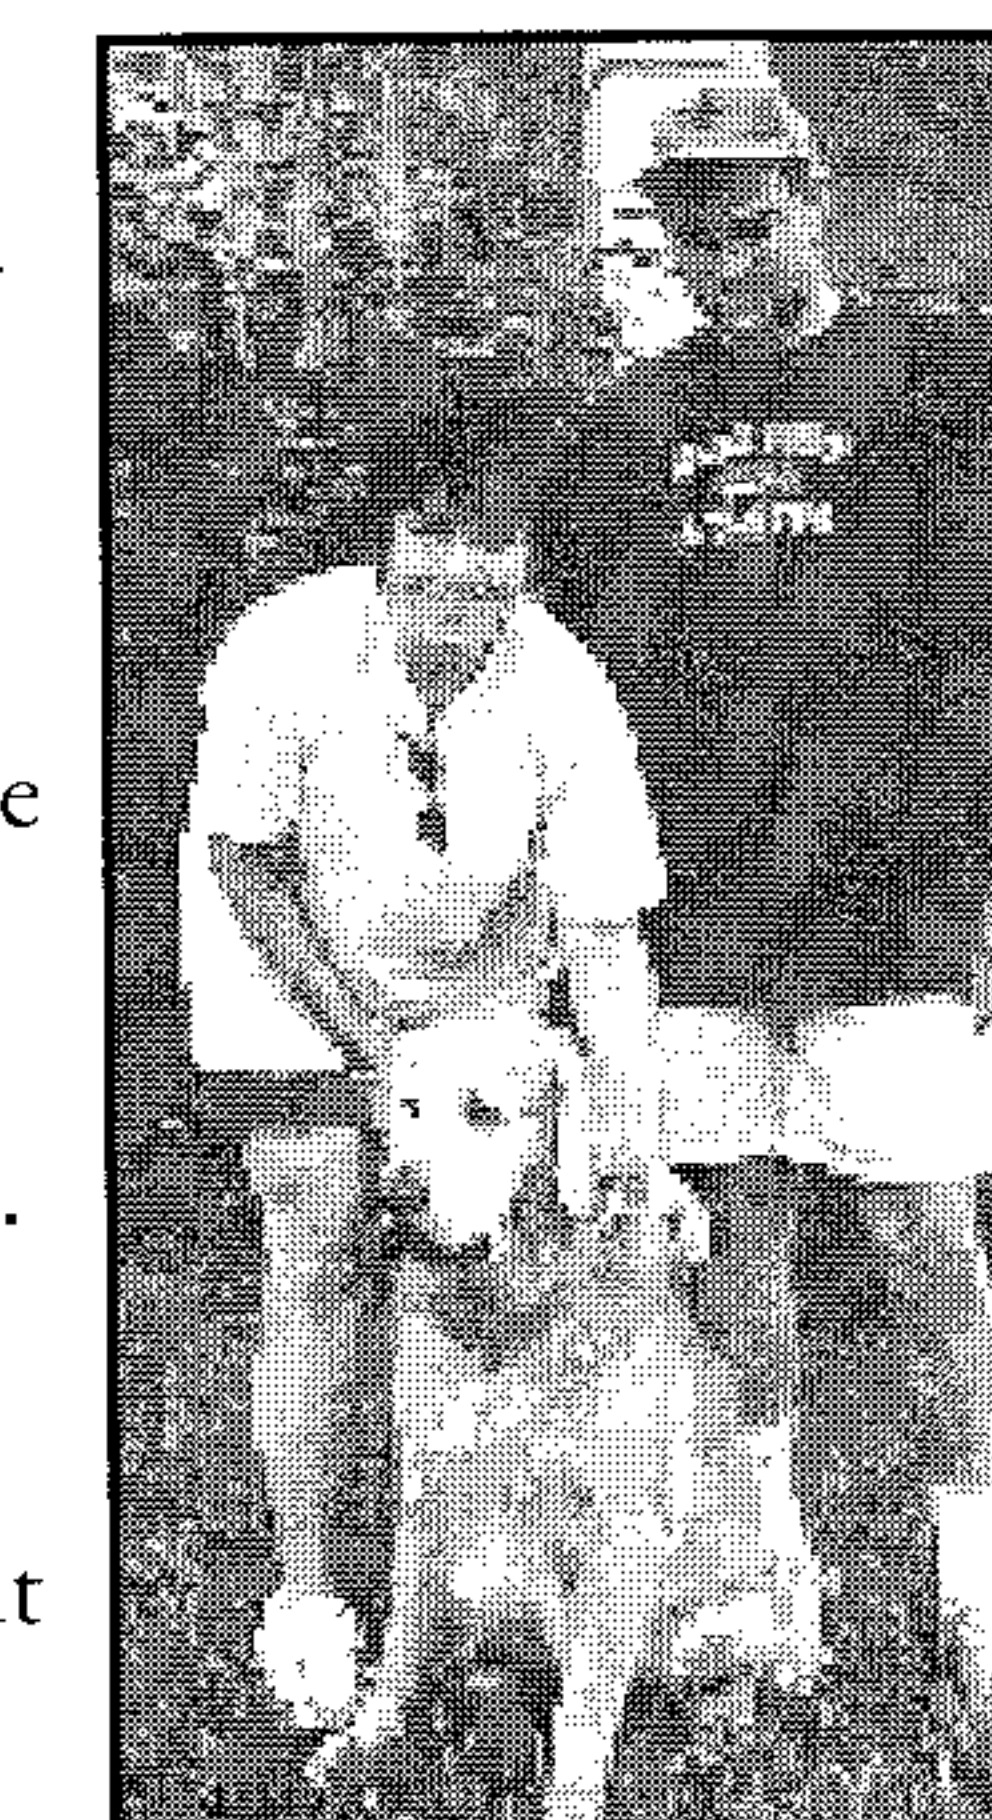

R.J., 8 years old, was turned in by his owner due to a family situation. He was fostered by Kirk and Michelle M., who decided to adopt him. R.J. loves to romp in the Breeze was turned in due to illness in the family. Once her heartworm treatment was complete, this gentle and laid-back girl was adopted by Ellen B., who reports she is fitting in perfectly with her new family.

Atlas was turned in to a veterinarian for euthanasia. The family was reportedly going on vacation and decided he was too much trouble. The veterinary staff received permission to call GRRMF – what luck! Now Atlas is the proud companion of Deborah B., who calls him Jackson.

Deborah and Jackson

Molly was rescued by Lori and Rob Williamson. This energetic, young female was adopted by the end of the week by Howard and Rosa, who plan to take her traveling with them.

Riley was fostered by Tom and Joanne Hell when his family could no longer keep him. He was adopted by Ronald and Suella W.

Dillon, 1 year old, was taken in and fostered by Lori and Rob Williamson. This little cutie was snapped up in no time by Joseph and Shelly A. What a good home he has – very much loved and appreciated by his new humans.

Jessie with her new family

Splash/Jessie was one of Isabel's puppies. She was given up because of the long hours her owners worked. She was fostered by Marti Conness and adopted by the Dano family. Her favorite activity is playing with their other golden, Bailey. Both of them are scheduled to begin obedience training next month.

Havana was rescued and fostered by Joanne and Tom Hell. This handsome boy was adopted by Alison and Chris K.

Erin, an awesomely smart and pretty young lady, went through two previous adoptions in her young life. Her foster parents even started her in obedience training, where she took first place. Now, she has finally found her forever home at last with Christine and Ronald L. They are continuing Erin's schooling, so they can learn to be as smart as she is. Many thanks to foster mom Sally Anne Rowland for turning this special pup around.

Erin and new family

Clint was almost hit by a truck in rush-hour traffic when a Good Samaritan rescued him and took him home. This poor little fellow was sent to the back yard with eight other large dogs, some aggressive. They wouldn't allow him to eat his food, so he was nearly starved when we got him – skin and bones. He is so handsome, we named him after Mr. Eastwood. Adopted by Terry M., who is an obedience instructor, he is now well-behaved and knows all his commands. Now called Charlie, he recently passed his canine good citizen test.

Charlie and Terry

Sammi and her puppies were turned in to rescue by a backyard breeder who decided to "go out of business." Sammi is still up for adoption, but her beautiful puppies – all adorable little blonde balls of fur – now have been adopted. They are:

- Douglas – Larry and Darlene P.
- Oliver – Richard and Kathy B.
- Charm – Bill and Susan H.
- Joy – Brooke and Brandon A.
- Sparkle – Javier M.
- Sherman – Jan and Alvin S.

Special thanks to our puppy fosters: Paul Werden and Catherine Huddleston, Jean Dixon, Sally Anne and Dave Rowland, who took four of them, and Dennis and Robin Williams who took three adults and six puppies – all at the same time!

Brandy

Many will remember Brandy – a 10-year-old with a white face whose picture holding three tennis balls in her mouth at once was on our Web site. Despite her age, Brandy was a tennis ball nut and was very playful. Her foster parents called her the “Grand Dame of Tennis Balls.” Once she learned to swim, she thought the pool was hers to use any time she wanted. Brandy, AKA “Bran Muffin,” was full of life – she savored every moment. Our thanks to Julie and Gary Mink for fostering her the last 10 months of her life until she succumbed to cancer.

Romeo came from a shelter with his buddy, Juliet. Renamed Copper, he lived a wonderful life this past year with Kathy Anderson, Ed Altom and their children. He was very thin while in rescue, but with TLC from his new humans, Copper had put on weight and looked great. When he suddenly became ill, Copper was taken to the veterinarian, who diagnosed him with cancer. His family loved him very much and stayed with him until the last moment. We thank them for all they did for this grand old gentleman who only knew how to love.

Polo was given to rescue as a puppy when a realtor found him abandoned in a vacant trailer. He was a comic and made people laugh with his antics. For some reason, after he matured, Polo became aggressive and bit his owners on several occasions. Sometimes, we have to protect people, even when the decision is a painful one. Our thanks to the Sharp family for all they did for Polo. We loved him, too!

Alex came from an animal shelter as a senior dog. This dignified old fellow was adopted by Dorothy Collins. They enjoyed each other immensely these past few years.

Lacy/Tracey was taken to a veterinarian by her family when she almost died from an infection following the birth of puppies. She was abandoned at the vet's office and we were called. What a pretty girl. She was a wonderful addition to Ed and Pat Howie's home. Her fun times included playing with their little dog and swimming laps in the pool. She could have been an Olympic contestant. This little clown broke their hearts when she died, but they are happy they had the pleasure of knowing her for these past several years.

Cody, #14, was the pride and joy of Joan Fox. Rescued from a bad situation, Cody admired his human as much as she admired him. She called him her “prince.” This pretty boy succumbed to cancer, and we are all saddened by his loss.

Alfie came to us from another rescue group who had taken him from a bad situation. His previous family allowed him to run the streets, and he was hit by a car, resulting in the loss of one leg. Alfie was a fantastic dog who was fortunate enough to be adopted by Ed and Nan Day. He lived to be an old guy, and when he could no longer get around, Ed carried him outside for potty breaks. They couldn't have loved him more, and we very much appreciate all the Days did for Alfie.

Raffle a Big Success!

The diamond bracelet raffle was a big success, bringing in more than $6,300 to GRRMF's Capital Campaign to raise funds for a free-standing shelter. The fund-raising committee would like to thank all GRRMF members and friends for their hard work in raising funds. We would especially like to thank Anitra Ruth for selling more than $2,000 worth of tickets. Anitra won the $100 prize for selling the most
